Methodology

The survey of the Fall 2024 was sent to 464 employees of Finnish private equity and venture capital companies, and a total of 110 answers were received. It was possible to answer anonymously, but based on the filled-in personal details, the participation in the survey was from at least 38 different private equity firms.

The survey has been conducted by using qualitative questions of fundraising, investment opportunities and exits. Responses have been converted into numerical balance scores according to the guidelines of Statistics Finland, to make it easier to track investors' sentiments over the long-term. Balance score can range between +100 and -100. A positive score means optimistic and negative pessimistic view of fundraising, investment opportunities or exits.
